I travel to Los Angeles infrequently, however, the few times I've travelled the 100+ miles "down the hill" the instant traffic and weather available via XM Radio has helped me make critical decisions regarding which route I'll take when I get there. XM Radio also provides me with weather that encompasses the "high desert area", where I live.

The FCC should be more focused on truck drivers mis-using CB radios than with a company providing a valuable traffic management and safety tool such as instant traffic and weather.

Stop trying to help the NAB justify their jobs and reject NAB's petition 04-160.
